FATHER KELLY TAKES MY JOB AWAY

I suppose many of my readers would like to know who Father Kelly is and why I complain that he is taking the bread and butter out of my mouth.

Gentle readers, I beg of you not to prejudge the man. The Rev. Father is a worthy representative of the Catholic clergy in New York City, where by the way every fourth person is one of our people. In this altercation which I am having with him, I know he is right and I am wrong, for he only did his duty. Yet I cannot help feel embittered and perhaps when you read the story you too may feel a pang of pain.

It was not Father Kelly's fault, was it, that he was asked by Gilbert W. Kahn, a "Protestant Jew," to tie the knot at his wedding to Miss Anne Elizabeth Whelan? The bridegroom was begotten (in Biblical language) by Otto H. Kahn, partner of the late Jacob H. Schiff, and a member of Kahn, Loeb & Co., which Henry Ford's "Dearborn Independent" always represents as the Jewish banking firm. Incidentally it might be told, that if it were not for a few Jewish banking firms, Henry Ford according to his own oft-repeated two-word interviews (we leave it to your imagination to figure out why Ford's interviews are so brief), would be a friend of the Jews. So that from one point of view the anti-Semitism of the Fords is not due to the masses of poor Jews but to the Kahns.

The bride was begotten by Mr. Charles A. Whelan of East Orange, New Jersey, who is a loyal and devoted Catholic, and who is the president of the United Cigar Stores.

Well, if things had taken their usual course and the devil had not interfered, a rabbi and not a Catholic priest would have been the m'sader k'dushin, but alas! one of my New York colleagues was denied this honour and incidentally the fine perquisite. It is not often that a rabbi is privileged to have such a wealthy wedding. And after all is said and done, what sort of a mechutan (relation) is the Reverend Father to a Jewish wedding? But you will tell me that this was not a Jewish wedding. The groom is a "Protestant Jew"(!) and the bride a Catholic. But what sort of a Jew is a "Protestant Jew," I ask? And so you answer: A Protestant Jew is the eldest son of a rich assimilated Jew who wants to marry the daughter of the presi- [illegible] in turn insists that unless the young man in question is willing to be married by a Catholic priest, according to the rites of the Catholic Church there can be no wedding. Well, what is the poor romantic young man to do, I ask you. Is not all fair in love and war? So he becomes a Protestant first, and then before approaching the altar on which burned two large cathedral candle sticks in the Italian Garden of the Hotel Ambassador in New York, he promises Father Kelly to turn Catholic and to rear the offspring of the union as Catholics. All hail to Father Kelly and to the Whelans for their fine loyalty, and the fine example they set those renegade Jews to whom loyalty to faith and people is a mere trifle.

We wonder what the non-Jewish guests who were present at the wedding—and a list of them sounds like New York's social register—thought of the groom, his family, their Jewish relatives and friends, among whom are the Schiffs and the Warburgs and the Baruchs and others. What can one think of a young man who is prepared to slough off Judaism, his inherited religion, and become a Protestant, and then is ready to do likewise with Protestantism to become a Catholic. Is religion like an old coat that one can take off and throw away, and bedeck oneself in a new coat to fit the seasons? Or is it a matter of style? Where is the old Jewish stamina and tenacious loyalty that sent young Kahn's forefathers to the pyre for their faith? Where are the remnants of that character? Is it all gone? The lightness with which these renegade Jews stoop to this sort of religious opportunism is indicative of their characterlessness and loss of moral fibre. We have often wondered how good a Christian, a Jew can become who throws off his Judaism so lightly? Bad Jews make poorer Christians.

It is usual, is it not, among conservative folks to regard the husband as the head of the family, in proof of which the bride takes her husband's name. Then why did not Miss Whelan take her husband's religion as well, and become a Jewess? The answer is clear. A good Catholic daughter cherishes her religion and prides herself in being loyal to it. But to Otto H. Kahn's son, his religion and his race are in the words of Heine, "a misfortune."

It is becoming a genuine epidemic for the sons and daughters of our so-called "best families" to marry out of the faith. The son of Lord Reading, the Viceroy of India, married out of his father's faith, the daughter of Mortimer Schiff did likewise, and now comes the eldest son of Otto H. Kahn. These are merely a few of a long list that I could mention. These desertions from Judaism are pathetic in themselves, and even more so in the bad example they set to these young people of Jewish families climbing up the social ladder, who imitate the upper set, and who see in the intermarriage of our better families a sanction for their own disloyalty.

If it were not for this phase of the question, I might, along with others of my rabbinical colleagues, not begrudge Father Kelly the honour nor the fee he received. I might even take the attitude, "Was abfalt ist abfall." But how can I and my colleagues remain calm and unperturbed when before our very eyes we see going on the dissolution of Jewish families, some of whose ancestors were noted for their Jewish piety, learning and leadership? Quite aside from the fact that a division in religion between husband and wife adds another serious difficulty in a relationship which requires a Houdini to keep balanced, intermarriage, if practiced on a wholesale scale by Jews, spells the dissolution of the Jewish people, whose lot is none too easy now. Every intermarriage where the Jewish party gives up his religion is a nail driven into the coffin of Judaism.

Is it too much of a sacrifice to ask Jewish sons and daughters when faced by the alternative of love or loyalty to choose loyalty to faith? Is it too much to ask of human nature?

I maintain that it is not. The very character, the very uniqueness of nature and mind which Jewish children inherit and which is the very making of them, can not be compensated for excepting by loyalty in times of crises such as that which love creates.

When, then, shall we ask for our sons and daughters' loyalty if not at such crises? It is not such loyalty that we want, as that which comes when they are refused admission into clubs and hotels or are called "Jew." This sort of loyalty is negative. It is the mere recoil to disloyalty. It is the sort of devotion to Judaism which comes only after their attempted escape from Judaism has been intercepted and they find themselves hurled back to their people. This sort of negative loyalty does not produce the best kind of a Jew.

It is the loyalty which comes from self-respect based on self-knowledge that we prize.

To bring on themselves the opprobrium and censure of parents and friends for the sake of the girl they love, some young Jews regard as the highest kind of sacrifice. But this is, at best, a form of sublimated selfishness. It is self-love and not sacrifice. It is not the

Emma Goldman is again in the world's limelight, for once brought forward under what happens to be a popular banner. It bears the device that Soviet rule has failed to bring liberty to the silenced masses of Russia and, although Goldman is for freedom now as always, an attack on Soviet rule is nevertheless likely to get a tender hearing for her in England or America where she seeks asylum under her own terms. This new banner may place her finally among the company of what is known as respectable people whether or not she wants to be there.

Before Emma Goldman's deportation in 1919 by the United States as an undesirable alien, she was feared as a wild, wild woman, a plotter against government and a disturber of all kinds of peace. To read about her was to picture her as a raucous-voiced she-devil of magic power, of whom the United States government would like to be rid. To see her was to seek her out among those shabby, down-at heel failures who made up the bulk of her audiences and colored the whole with grey. There one found a short, plump woman, uncorseted, fair-skinned, blue-eyed, with that lovely blondish hair piled carelessly on the top of her head, giving her the matronly air of a housewife and mother of ten. At first she would lecture, mostly to people who already believed as she did, and later she would answer questions put in several languages about anarchism or free love, while Berkman, his face oily by birth and his clothes greasy by soup, would go around selling her books.

That was where the spotlight would usually find her, but that was the old light. The new one disclosed her as a dinner guest in England arranged by such people as Bertrand Russell and other liberals, and attended by more than a hundred leaders of thought. What she said was published in daily papers all over the world, and commented on with respect. It is hard to believe that Emma Goldman could or would remain silent about other theories of hers which were always so annoying to the United States government, but if she has abjured these or would remain silent, her open sesame might lie in public speaking against Soviet rule, so it may yet come to pass that Emma Goldman will be regarded as a woman who was once redder than red but who has seen the folly of her ways and agreed to be a lady.

There were four answers to the Evening Telegram's recent yellow attack on the Jews. One was an editorial in which the Daily Star held up the Telegram to the disgust of all right-minded papers and people. Another was a letter from S. W. Jacobs, of Montreal, protesting against the charge by the Telegram that he received so much a head for refugee Jews brought here; and also against vials of hatred being poured upon his race. The third answer was an editorial in this paper by Rabbi Brickner reading the Telegram out of decent fellowship with other papers and excoriating the writer of the offending article. The fourth answer that we know about was from this column.

Yes, the same issue of the REVIEW which carried Rabbi Brickner's editorial against the Telegram's abandonment carried a paragraph in "Every Friday" just as much against. It wasn't very long, of course, and wasn't printed in red ink or capital letters or anything like that, but it was visible just the same and in its own happy fashion a denunciation. It called down upon the Telegram the disapproval of all honorable people and suggested just such a pogrom into the Telegram's subscription and advertising income as the Telegram whiningly accuses Rabbi Brickner of. The Telegram saw it, too, because it was marked plainly in the REVIEW copy which the Telegram sent for as soon as it knew REVIEWS were off the press.

But such is life pursued under initialled obscurity that not a scrap of credit was given us by the Telegram, nor were we scathed a single time. The Star got a bath of sarcasm which was an admission of fear on the part of the Telegram. Mr. Jacobs got an out-and-out apology, even if you did have to read for it, and the "Rev. Rabbi Brickner, late of Cincinnati, U.S.A.," got a page and a half of publicity which, muddled and incoherent though it was, was still the inspired child of the Telegram's flashiest minds working together over a period of many days, and therefore the best the paper had to offer. However, we have no intention of being small about the matter. On the whole we have something to be thankful for in the mention of the CANADIAN JEWISH REVIEW and the importance that even the Telegram attaches to our contributing editor, "the Rev. Rabbi Brickner." So we remain one of the Telegram's most ardent non-supporters, and as a denouncer of that paper second to none, in willingness at least.

KEREN HAYESOD CAMPAIGN

At an informal luncheon at the Mount Royal on Sunday, November 23, about eighty guests pledged $31,000 towards the Keren Hayesod campaign (Palestine Foundation Fund.

The objective for this third Keren Hayesod campaign is $100,000. Mrs. A. J. Freiman, president of Dominion Hadassah, at the luncheon pledged the support of Hadassah for $15,000 towards the quota.

The Jews of Canada and the United States are the ones to control immigration into Palestine, said A. J. Freiman, who presided at the luncheon. The British Government, in an announcement made recently by Sir Herbert Samuel, pointed out that they be guided in its immigration policy entirely by the economic developments of the country. The Keren Hayesod fund, said Mr. Freiman, is the golden key to Palestine, and it was up to the Jews of Canada and the United States to provide the opportunity for their brethren in Palestine to colonize the land.

Mourice Samuel, editor, war correspondent, author of "You Gentiles," and who recently made a tour of Palestine at the request of Dr. Chaim Weitzman, then painted a picture of conditions after the war, and emphasized the fact that what the Jews of Central Europe need now is not shelter and food, but a secure place called "a home."

Palestine is the home they are yearning for, said Mr. Samuel, and he pictured the transformation of the frightened pale-faced pioneer on his way to Palestine and the energetic, spirited colonist after he had been attached to the soil for a short period of time. Palestine, the speaker declared, is not a sentimental luxury, but a real racial necessity. The only cure for the abnormal after-war effects was the Zionist movement. The need of the Wanderers, the evicted European Jews, was not for physical but for psychical relief. The only remedy was to make Palestine a real home.

Dr. Schmarya Levin, noted orator and Zionist, one of the principal speakers at the mass meeting on Monday night, spoke of his visit to Palestine and of the encouraging features he noted. He was most enthusiastic of the manner in which the colonists were turning the waste lands of Palestine into a garden.

Palestine is capable of holding between five to six million Jews, it was pointed out by a prominent Zionist today, and the Keren Hayesod fund was the only means the Zionist organization had to help pioneers to settle on the land. Hebrew is now recognized as the official language of the Government of Palestine [illegible] in the schools, from the kindergartens to the teachers' seminaries.

At the luncheon, November 23, the following pledged: A. Levin, H. Kellert, S. Levinson & Co., R. A. Darwin, S. Hart, Lyon Cohen, Bronfman's, Louis Fitch, Jack and Max Horwitz, Royal Cloak (J. and P. Cohen), I. Lande, B. Weiner, Z. Fineberg & Sons, Jacobs & Phillips, Dr. H. Abram, Fisher & Sourkes, City Sponging, Berkson & Kahn, Chas. Hershon, Leon Levin, Max Bernfeld, M. Garber, Dr. A. O. Freedman, H. Wolofsky, J. I. Bennett, S. Bruck, Ruckenstein & Guttman, J. C. Zacks, S. J. Rodman, Greenwood & Kahn, L. B. Daniels, G. Solomon, A. H. Rabin, Leon Goldman, J. J. Myerson, Yellin & Slotin, Gregory Sanders, Louis Miller, M. A. Brown, Ben Bernstein, Lyon Levin, Mr. Brodie, Hadassah Group, Young Judaea, Upstream Club, Jewish Legion Veterans.

An Appeal to the Jewish Women of Toronto

Especially to the ladies of the Hadassah, Women's Auxiliary, Volks Verein, Jewish Old Folks' Home, Labor Lyceum, Mount Sinai Hospital and Immigrant Aid Society.

As you know, the Kehillah has been organized to see that all the profits of the "shechitah" should not go to a few individuals, but should be divided among all the needy people of different institutions of Toronto.

The Kehillah has been organized for the purpose of aiding all the poor and to support all the charity institutions of the city from the profits of the meat sold under the supervision of the Kehillah and its six Rabbis.

We ask you, therefore, to co-operate with us and help us in our work, and you can only do so if you buy meat with the Kehillah stamp. Meat without this stamp is not kosher and the profits thereof go to a few individuals who are getting rich on the charity of the community.

Buy meat with the Kehillah stamp only and help the poor, the sick, the helpless immigrants and the aged people who cannot shift for themselves.

Since the existence of the Kehillah the sum of $1,700 has been distributed to various organizations as follows:

Federation of Jewish Philanthropies	$500
Volks Verein	200
Old Folks' Home	200
Immigrant Aid Society	200
Mount Sinai Hospital	200
Labor Lyceum	200
Keren Hayesod (Zionists)	200
	$1,700

The profits of the sale of meat are also used to keep up our rabbis and shochetim who serve in the interests of the community, and see that you get Kosher meat.

Yours truly,

THE KEHILLAH OF TORONTO,
CHAS. SHER

We request all the presidents of synagogues, societies, organizations and especially those of the ladies' auxiliaries, to explain to their members our useful work and stress the fact that

LYON W. JACOBS, K.C., CLEARED

The Montreal Council of the Bar, consisting of 18 advocates, presided over by the Batonnier, J. Cook, K.C., and Charles Champoux, K.C., syndic of the bar, after four weeks' investigation demanded by ex-Alderman Lyon W. Jacobs, K.C., into the rumours that had been published and circulated regarding him in connection with the bandit case, have rendered a unanimous judgment declaring these rumours false.

Twenty-five witnesses were called by Mr. Jacobs, including Chief Justice Decarie, Judge Cusson, Recorder Semple, Crown Prosecutor R. L. Calder and Chief of Detectives Egan.

It was proven that rumours published in a newspaper that Mr. Jacobs had received $13,000.00 were false.

A representative of the paper declared to the Bar that the article had been published in error and could not be substantiated by them, and that they had already published a retraction.

In regard to the passes, it was established by the evidence of Judges Decarie and Cusson, that they had never been forged and never been made out in the office of Mr. Jacobs, both judges stating that the passes in question were issued by them at Court, in their own handwriting, and under their own signatures, and given to Rosen at his own personal request, without Mr. Jacobs' knowledge or consent.

In regard to the address to the jury, on which Mr. Jacobs asked for an expression of opinion, the Council held that Mr. Jacobs was within his legal right as an advocate in making it.

The Honourable Mr. Justice Wilson did not personally appear before the Council, but made a report which declared Mr. Jacobs' conduct professional.

BENEFIT DANCE

A benefit dance was held at Sinclair's Academy, November 22, in aid of several poor families. Mrs. A. Zatz, who was in charge, was assisted financially by Dr. Lightstone, Dr. J. Rosen, Lyon W. REVIEW JUNIOR SECTION:

I would like to join the Cousin Family of the CANADIAN JEWISH REVIEW.

My name is.....

I live at.....

I am..... years of age.

Come one! Come all! Let's have lots and lots of new cousins. Ye Maker of Limericks says he'll write a limerick especially for every new cousin. And though I say it as shouldn't, Ye Maker of Limericks certainly can write pomes! (You'll note I said "pomes" and not "poems"—there is a difference!)

Chanukah competition. There will be prizes for the best Chanukah stories or poems. All entries to reach office not later than December 17. Send stories to REVIEW JUNIOR SECTION, 319 Bay Street, Toronto.

Dear Cousins:

There is a quaint old French legend, that is told in song and rhyme, in many lands. I have only to close my eyes, and I am back to the afternoon upon which I heard it sung by a very charming girl. The song tells the story of an old, old mother, who dearly loved her only child, a gay and handsome youth of twenty. It happened that this lad fell in love with a creature as hard-hearted as she was beautiful, who insisted that her lover perform deeds of valour, to prove his love for her. The youth did all that she asked of him but, still dissatisfied, she insisted that he bring his mother's heart to her. The weak, misguided lad tore his mother's heart from out her breast and, with the blood dripping from his fingers, ran to the cruel girl with it. As he ran, he stumbled and fell . . . From the bleeding heart a faint whisper came to him, "My son, hast hurt thyself?" . . .

Thus, mother love!

Ye Maker of Limericks.

Well, cousins all, here ends our "Different Competition." We have decided, but only after quite a discussion, to give the prizes to Fannie Fleming, author of "Candles," and Tiny Tim, author of "Lloyd George." Will they let me have their addresses as soon as possible so that their prizes may be sent off at once? And, perhaps Tiny Tim will let us have his (or is it her?) name, too. Congratulations to the prize-winners and to the other competitors, a warm invitation to participate in the Chanukah competition.

PRIZE ESSAYS

CANDLES

BY FANNIE FLEMING.

What is a candle? Only a stick of wax, and only another means of procuring light. Yet, what does it mean to us?

For ages untold, it has held its quiet, majestic sway at the Jewish festival and Sabbath night. Without them, neither the former nor latter would seem real.

And is it not like a human life? The flickering of the flame may stand for illness, misfortune or unhappiness. When the flame is steady and burns brightly it may stand for contentment and happiness. When the candle nears its ends, it flickers and starts as if wishing to resume its former life. Gradually it becomes weaker and weaker, and finally, quietly, it dies out. How like us it is, and, still, how unlike us it is!

In our synagogues we have "Der Ner Tomid" or "The Eternal Flame." When in ages of yore our people were driven from the homeland and everything they possessed (including a magnificent temple) was destroyed, there remained, by God's will, "The Eternal Flame." Its equal cannot be found. For ages it has shone on the chosen people with radiance, kindly and human—it is God-given.

On the Sabbath night or Jewish holiday I would sit for hours and look into the candle's flame. As I look, I imagine myself living the Jewish life with the Jewish people from the time of Abraham. I live with them in the Holy Land. I live with them when they are wanderers over the earth. And as I look there comes to me the hope that I may be with them when they are settled in Holy Palestine, again God's Chosen People in the land He gave them. And I hope, and I know, that then, as in the thousands of years before they were again in the homeland, that the candle will still cast its kindly radiance around on the Sabbath night and Jewish Festival.

LLOYD GEORGE

BY TINY TIM.

Lloyd George was a British statesman whose great personality has made itself felt in all important reforms of recent British history. Only a man of decision and action could have brought to the notice of or initiated Conservative England into the movements that are identified with his name. It is a well-known fact that Lloyd George must have had a great personality to have attained such a post at the time when England was involved in the greatest struggle of modern times—war of the nations.

David Lloyd George was the son of a poor Welsh schoolmaster who died when David was but a mere child, three years old. His mother was a daughter of David Lloyd George. Lloyd George in later days adopted his mother's family name for his surname. He was sent to Wales to be reared by his uncle, a poor shoemaker. At the age of 21 he was well-known enough to win a seat in parliament.

During the Boer War he made speeches concerning certain acts in parliament, but was made most unpopular by this speech-making. In fact, while attempting to make a speech in the town hall of Birmingham, he was mobbed by the crowd. But after the war the people began to realize Lloyd George's high courage and unfailing independence.

In 1906 he entered Campbell Bannerman's cabinet as president of the Board of Trade. Two years later he succeeded Sir Herbert Asquith as Chancellor of the Exchequer. He gained more popularity in 1911 by passing a great reform bill, the insurance of the government to the unemployed and invalids. In 1913 the country was thrilled again with another of Lloyd George's bills, the Equalization of Property in England. But ere this movement was fairly launched it became interrupted by the outbreak of the Great War.

Soon after the outbreak, Lloyd George was his country's dynamic force. He became leader of war department. In 1915 he succeeded Sir Herbert Asquith as premier of England, and represented England at the peace conference at Paris.

Lloyd George had resigned and was succeeded by Bonar Law, but it may be said that England can never again have a statesman like Lloyd George.

POETS' CORNER

THE VISIONARY

(By Jessie E. Sampter).

He does not feel the vulture stab his flesh,
The serpent's fang is dull to him,
His eyes have leapt beyond the thorny mesh
That cramps and crushes limb to limb.

Though poor he seems, he holds the world in debt,
Though old he seems, he's now newborn,
A thousand million suns in blood have set—
But still on Zion breaks his morn!

Ye nations, all your gold can buy is strife,
Your battleships have death to give;
And ye shall come to him and beg for life,
For visions make the world to live.

Sparkling and happy all the day
Are the field-daisies in bonnets of white!
They are eagerly sunning!
Their gold-hearts are gay!
from "Question" by Hyman Segal.

HUSHING SONG

Eily, Eily,
My bonnie wee lass;
The winds blow,
And the hours pass.

But never a wind
Can do thee wrong,
Brown birdeen singing
Thy bird-heart song.

And never an hour
But has for thee
Blue of the heaven
And green of the sea.

Blue for the hope of thee,
Eily, Eily,
Green for the joy of thee,
Eily, Eily.

Swing in thy nest, then,
Here on my heart,
Birdeen, Birdeen,
Here on my heart,
Here on my heart!

Fiona MacLeod.

GOING TO SCHOOL

Two little piggy-wigs trotted to school —
Their mother had promised them goose berry fool,
If their lessons they did and came home in time
And learned to spell catchy words like yacht and rhyme.

SOME CLEVER CONUNDRUMS

Why is Westminster Abbey like a hearth? Because the ashes of the great (grate) lie there.

Why is New York City like a flash light? It has a Battery.

Why is the Hudson River like a shoe? Because it is a great place for tows (toes).

Why is Canada like courtship? Because it borders on the United States.

Why is the Brooklyn Bridge like merit? Because it is very often passed over.

If a tough beefsteak could speak, what English poet would it mention? Chaw, sir (Chaucer).

What prescription is the best for a poet? A composing draft.

Why is an author the most wonderful man in the world? Because his tale (tail) comes out of his head.

What was the most melancholy fact in the history of Milton? That he could "recite" his poems, but not resight himself.

Why was Dickens a greater writer than Shakespeare? Shakespeare wrote well, but Dickens wrote Weller.

From what hour can you take away half, and so leave a whole day?—Midday.

U.S. ALIEN LAWS MAKE PALESTINE JEWISH CENTER

Samuel Untermyer Points to Reconstructed Holy Land as Secure Refuge for Homeless of Race

100,000 Transform Area

Leaders Meet Here December 7 to Discuss Colonization Policy of New Settlement

Palestine is the most important Jewish center in the world, a position made possible by the immigration laws of the United States, Samuel Untermyer, president of the Palestine Foundation Fund, said. Because of the importance Palestine has assumed, he said, a conference of 300 leading Jews from all parts of the country will be held in New York on December 7.

Discussing the situation in the Near East, Mr. Untermyer said:

"In its millenial and kaleidoscopic history Palestine is assuming a new role. Through the beneficent works of economic, industrial and cultural development Palestine has become a haven of refuge for the thousands of Jews whom the closed doors of America have deprived of the opportunity to reconstruct their lives on a secure, dignified and productive basis. Palestine is to-day the most important Jewish center in the world.

American Jews Interested

"The interest which the civilized world displays in the Holy Land, the cradle of religions, entitled these reports to universal consideration, apart from the marked progress that they reveal in the redemption of a long neglected land. They interest particularly the vast army of American Jews, who, through the Palestine Foundation, have been the chief support of this work and whose representatives are soon to meet in annual session for the purpose of taking stock of what has been accomplished.

"The 70,000 Jewish Americans who have contributed to this fund during the last year are this week holding elections for delegates to represent them in the national council, which is to hold its annual meeting early next month for the purpose of choosing the national officers and determining the general lines of policy.

100,000 Developing Land

"The 100,000 Jews now living in Palestine, of whom 20 per cent. till the soil on which they live, and especially the 40,000 who have come in since the conclusion of the war, are transforming the country. They are bringing into Palestine the arts of civilization and the atmosphere of peace. They have laid the foundations of an industrial development through the establishment of electrical power plants, one of which is already functioning near Jaffa. Another is being completed near Haifa.

"The tractor, the science of dry farming and intensive agriculture have been introduced, and their efficacy in Palestine is attested to by Professor Elwood Mead, of the United States Department of the Interior.

"The Jewish pioneers are laying the foundations and preparing a homeland where eventually hundreds of thousands, if not millions, of their brethren will find a home."

F. Tanner, a young man of the Jewish faith, was mayor of Goldipulle, Ky., from 1919 to 1923. There are only two Jewish families in the entire county and Mr. Tanner was elected by a large majority. He served as mayor for four years with credit to himself and his constituents. He refused re-election without opposition. Mr. Tanner's influence, up to the present time, has kept the Ku Klux Klan out of that county. He is thirty-four years of age.

Baron Maurice de Rothschild, against whom allegations of bribery and corruption during the recent elections in the Haute Alps department have been made by the defeated candidate, has been elected member of the Conseil General in the Canton of Embrun.

CONFERENCE TO DEBATE CHANGE IN QUOTA LAW

Legislators, Scientists and Immigrant Representatives Meet Tuesday to Consider Johnson Alien Act

Careful Study Outlined

Recommendation to Congress to Be Ready in 1926 When New Bill Comes Up

Legislators, scientists and representatives of immigrants met at the Bar Association Tuesday at 8 p.m. to discuss the Johnson immigration law, it was announced yesterday by Nathaniel Phillips, president of the League of Foreign-Born Citizens, 342 Madison Avenue, who summoned the conference principally to offer plans to correct some of the reported defects in the method of permitting aliens to enter the country.

Professor Franz Boas, anthropologist, presented the larger scientific aspects of the problem, while Professor Julius Dracheler, of City College, an authority on immigration, discussed technical problems. Representatives Anning S. Prall and Nathan D. Perlman presented the point of view of Congress, while Mr. Phillips and Harold Fields, chairman of the committee on immigration legislation for the League, spoke in behalf of the immigrants.

"The aim of this conference is neither to suggest amendments nor repeal of the Johnson immigration law," Max Fields said. "We feel that if a study is to be made of the immigration question to the end of recommending changes in its legislation procedure, some law must be kept upon our statute books and it might be just as well be the present one as any other.

"In fact, to attempt to put another through would arouse opposition needlessly and would subvert the very purposes we are seeking to attain. It is our desire to make a careful study and send in our recommendations about the time when a new law will be ready for consideration. That, of course, will not take place before 1926.

"Because naturalization and immigration are so closely interwoven, we began early this year to devise a means whereby the economic status of the immigrant could be improved while at the same time the industrial needs of our country were better solved. It seems to the committee that if such a co-ordination of effort could be made through our immigration law it could well hold first place in our national problems.

"Consultations and conferences have been held with many authorities in allied fields with the result that this general conference has been called to acquaint all civic and patriotic organizations engaged in similar work with the recommendations of this committee."

Among the societies represented at the conference were: Salvation Army, Catholic Immigrant Auxiliary, Independent Order of Brith Abraham, Jewish Welfare Board, National Council of Episcopal Churches, Board of Education, Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce, Home Missions Council, Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society, Staten Island Social Service, State Education Department, Brooklyn Federation of Jewish Charities, Young Men's Christian Association, Italian Auxiliary, Naturalization Aid League and the Hudson Guild.

Professor Albert Einstein, author of the relativity theory, was not very much disturbed when he learned of the statement made by his opponent of long standing, Captain See, of Mare Island, that an error in his calculations proves Newton right and Einstein wrong. "Too bad," was all that Professor Einstein had to say on the matter. See has been an opponent of Professor Einstein's theory since it was made known. Einstein, however, has always ignored his attacks, which were always highly coloured by personal consideration.

Adolf Hitler, leader of the German anti-Semites and defeated general of the Bavarian Beer Revolution, will not be permitted to enter Austria. If he crosses the border he will be interned and held for deportation. Such instructions were issued by the Austrian government to the frontier authorities in view of the fact that Hitler, who is now imprisoned in Bavaria, is to be sent to Austria, his former country. The Austrian government claims that by reason of Hitler's absence from Austria for twelve years he has lost his citizenship.

NINETIETH BIRTHDAY PARTY IS CHANAH'S FUNERAL

Candles Taken from Fete Cake Light Her Bier at Home for Aged

For twenty-two years Chanah Feldman had lived with fifty two other aged Hebrew men and women in the Home of Old Israel No 202 Henry Street, New York. At dawn her companions began preparation for a feast in honour of her ninetieth birthday.

A big cake with ninety candles was prepared, and the old men and women were provided with new clothing to wear.

Savory odours floated into the halls, and Chanah knew something unusual was about to take place. Two hours before the time for the feast she asked Dr. Louis Singer, head of the home, if she was not responsible for the excitement. He told her of the party.

Chanah thanked Dr. Singer and her friends. Then she was led to her room to rest. When the doctor went to lead her to the feast he found Chanah dead, a smile still on her lips. Excitement had brought on heart failure.

As those who were to have made merry at Chanah's feast knelt and chanted old Hebrew prayers, the ninety candles were taken from the cake and set about her bier.

highest form of loyalty. Higher than loyalty to self is loyalty to an ideal—to a cause such as that for which our people have suffered and died these two thousand years. Is this nothing to you young Jewish men and women, I ask.

It was nothing to the children of the Readings and the Schiffs and the Kahns, but thank God it is something to the sons and daughters of the masses of the Jewish people. Jewish family life has been the source of our strength and the object of Christian praise from time immemorial, and it has been that, because marriage to us has meant not merely a physical union, not merely an intellectual union, but a spiritual union. Jews and Jewesses united in wedlock have regarded themselves as bearers of a torch—the torch of Judaism—whose light it was their mission to transfer to their children not merely unimpaired, but enhanced. Judaism is a tender light whose flames can only be kept burning by careful tending. Jewish marriage was such an ideal.

Is Gilbert Kahn's marriage such a marriage? I wonder.

A Jewish cynic I knew once said to me, "Rabbi, don't worry about intermarriage. It has one worth-while feature. It helps to dilute Christianity." Only to a cynic could this end be worth while. Loyal Jews and loyal Christians who cherish their respective faiths and who see in each a unique function to fulfill can merely feel depressed at the growing number of deflections from religion generally which intermarriage produces. It is not unusual for couples who have intermarried to decide in advance of marriage to regard religion as a tabooed question- a question never to be raised or discussed, for the sake of peace. In such an atmosphere the tender plant of religion withers and dies.

In this connection it is not amiss to recall Hamlet's words: "To thine own self be true; thou canst not then be false to any man."

And so at the marriage of Miss Anne Elizabeth Whelan to Gilbert W. Kahn, both Father Kelly, who took my job away, and I both weep.

MRS. HENRY BOEHM

Mrs. Henry Boehm before her recent marriage in Berlin, Germany, was Miss Pearl Greisman, daughter of Mrs. M. Greisman, of 161 Parkside Drive, Toronto, and soprano soloist in the Holy Blossom Synagogue. Miss Greisman went to Berlin to continue her musical education and equip herself for the grand opera stage two years ago. She met Mr. Boehm in January last and became his bride last week. She will establish her home in Berlin but continue her work on the concert stage.

In early school days while a pupil at Harbord Collegiate Institute, Miss Greisman showed signs of a soprano voice of an excellence which warranted her continuing musical study. Teachers advised her to continue her study in the European academies. With the ultimate ambition of joining a grand opera company, Miss Greisman left for Berlin in September of 1922 and there joined friends.

She became a pupil of Frau Blachinger, who was formerly one of Europe's foremost prima donnas and was to have made her operatic debut in the Imperial Opera House under the direction of Dr. Basel this season at a handsome salary, but the untimely death of that musician in September last shattered these plans.

It was at the annual press ball given in Berlin's largest hotel last January when Miss Greisman met her husband, Henry Boehm, a wealthy and prominent young man in Berlin society. Following this meeting the romance grew and resulted in the wedding quite recently. Mrs. Boehm will appear in concert recital in Germany, where they will establish their home upon return from a honeymoon trip to Milan, Vienna and Paris via Switzerland. The wedding was one of the most fashionable in Berlin during the current season. Mrs. Greisman will shortly visit her daughter.

Huge airships, modeled after the Zeppelin, will in future not be "made in Germany," but in the United States. According to an agreement concluded between the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company and Engineer Karl Arnstein, chief constructor at the Zeppelin works at Friedrichshafen and builder of the ZR-3, an engineering corps, headed by Mr. Arnstein, will come to the United States. The party will leave November 1 for Akron, Ohio. Zeppelin workmen at Friedrichshafen fired 126 shots from antiquated cannon when news reached them that the ZR-3 had landed at Lakehurst. There was one round for every type of Zeppelin built. Only one element marred the celebration. There was general feeling that all the glory had gone to Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the ship, whereas it should have been divided with Dr. Arnstein, chief of construction. To make up for this a parade was held in honour of Dr. Arnstein and speeches were made extolling his qualities. Among the Zeppelin workmen feeling was intense at what they considered lack of recognition of the abilities of their idol.

Euclid Avenue Temple, Cleveland, is one of the very few houses of worship throughout the world that is equipped with passenger elevators. The height of the Temple and the large membership of its congregation make elevator service a very necessary and welcome feature. The elevator is operated by push buttons so that any one may operate it. It is equipped with all known safety devices and cannot be run unless all doors, including the collapsing gates on the car, are closed.

STANDARD THEATRE

The management of the Standard Theatre announce their next production, "The Star of Israel," ("Der Yiddisher Shtern") for Friday evening, Saturday matinee and evening, November 28-29. It is an operetta with twenty numbers of characteristic Jewish music. They have arranged a double chorus of adults and choir of twenty boys, together with the voices of Clara Honigman, Sadie Shoengold, Annette Rosenthal, Sam Gertler, Simon Paskel, Hyman Yoblokov and Nancy Fein. We are assured a splendid performance.

The opening of the play shows the celebration of the bar-mitzvah of the twin brothers. When discovery is made that one of the twins has been stolen, the mother dies of shock; and years later the two brothers meet under circumstances that form the events of the play.

SHEA'S

Donald Brian, from a dozen musical successes, Virginia O'Brien, formerly the prima donna of George M. Cohen's "Rose of Rosie O'Reilly" and "Mary," and Gitz Rice, the famous singing composer, are the three stars who have joined hands at Shea's Theatre next week in a miniature musical revue by themselves. Mr. Brian was the original prince of "The Merry Widow." Miss O'Brien is an ingenue prima donna. Gitz Rice served with distinction overseas during the war and composed "Keep Your Head Down, Fritzi Boy" and "I Want to Go Home".

Rose Doner, of the famous Doner family, and Johnny Berkes offer a skit under the title "Maybe Who Can Tell?"

Neil McKay is a singer of Scotch character songs and a raconteur.

Billy Farrell and Company offer "Novelty Surprises," comparing songs and dances of the present generation with those of other days.

Cervo is a piano accordeonist. Moro is a violinist.

Harry Jans and Harold Whalen are "Two Good Boys Gone Wrong." They are a pair of nut comedians, who keep the mercury in the barometer of laughter at the top. John Rothany and Frank Molino call their company of ten people "Yip Yip Yaphankers." Togo, the world's most sensational wireist, who slides on a rope from the second balcony and Shea's News Review complete the bill.

EMPIRE

Following its policy of a new show each week and each show a standard type of Columbia Burlesque, the Empire Theatre will offer, during the week of December 1st, Jack Reid's "Record Breakers" as worthy of attention and patronage. Mr. Reid, the "Information Kid," heads his show in person and will be supported by a fine array of talent.

This star of Columbia Burlesque and his annual attraction is always an amusement feature worth while considering. This year Mr. Reid is said to be equipped with even a more pretentious and attractive vehicle than in past years. The production is in two big acts and ten magnificent scenes, while the many changes of gorgeous and attractive costumes have been fetchingly designed. There are eighteen unusually pretty chorus girls who have been selected not only for youth and beauty but for talent and sprightliness as well.

As to cast, Mr. Reid has not depended solely upon his own effectual efforts as entertainer, but has surrounded himself with a notable aggregation of singers, dancers, comedians, acrobats and general entertainers. Kitty Warren, one of Burlesque's most popular soubrettes, ranks next in importance to Mr. Reid, followed closely by Helen Kay Booth as prima donna, and Billy Cumby, one of the funniest negro comedians on the present-day stage.

Frank Tunnes, eccentric comedian; Joe Lang, leading man and vocalist, and Joe Melino, a pantomimist of rare skill and a dancer hard to equal, will be other principals who will offer collective and individual talents. The Misses Warren and Booth will engage largely in leading the chorus through fast paces, while Joe Land will present them in a fashion show.

Two special features of great interest will be Johaan Fraank's reproductions of famous paintings through the use of living models and special lighting effects, and Ray's Comedy Circus. The last-named feature includes a series of stunts by trained dogs, cats, ponies and monkeys that has delighted audiences at home and abroad. The antics of a trick mule will be found especially amusing as he demonstrates his stubbornness in defying any human being to stay astride his back longer than an instant.

"CRUEL DECEIT" OF PLAN TO ANNUL KOSHER LAW ATTACKED IN COURT

Washington, Nov. 26 Defense of the constitutionality of the New York State laws which protect kosher meat was begun to-day before the Supreme Court. The laws, which make it a crime to represent meat as "kosher" unless it is prepared according to Orthodox Jewish rites, are being attacked by an association of provision manufacturers and dealers

The opponents assert that "kosher" is a speculative standard, not possible of practical application. They told the court "kosher" has developed a secondary meaning of cleanliness when it reflects "unwarrantably on meats labeled 'non-kosher,'" and the legislation is an unconstitutional interference with interstate commerce.

Samuel H. Hofstader, who is arguing the case of Attorney-General Sherman, declared: "It is within the police power of a State to protect those who would be most cruelly deceived into the commission of what they believe to be sin." He charged the manufacturers who are assailing the kosher standard have built up a large business based in its guarantee.
